TAILORS AND CUTTERS OUT

Thousands of Other Employees of Tailoring Establishments Affected.

WOMEN FOUGHT BY THE EMPLOYERS' SOCIETIES.

Later Back the Manufacturers and a Protracted and Desperate Struggle is in Sight—Effort Being Made to Achieve a Settlement of the Drivers' Strike—Federation of Labor Votes an Assessment to Help the Fall River Strikers' Struggle—Federation's Policy.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Six thousand men and 500 cutters walked out this morning, the result of an order to compel the manufacturing tailors to sign a renewal of a present agreement providing for a 10 per cent increase in the scale of wages and the union scale. Several thousand other employees of tailoring concerns are affected. The employers' association is taking the manufacturers, and a struggle is predicted. A conference of both sides in the future wagon drivers' strike will be held today in order to effect a settlement if possible.

Pitiful Suffering Narrated.

San Francisco, Nov. 19.—At the meeting of the Federation of Labor appeals were made for aid to the striking textile workers at Fall River, Mass. Pitiful pictures of suffering women and children affected by the strike were shown. A woman delegate stirred the delegates by relating she had seen 1800 children starve in line and get a meal of soup and bread, the only meal received that day. Fall River was referred to as a speaker as the Port Arthur of labor world, garrisoned by women and children.

Voluntary Expressions.

San Francisco, Nov. 19.—The Federation of Labor this morning voted a proposition to establish a committee of disputes by allowing workers to exercise individual choice in the matter of affiliation. Long resolutions intended to state the principles of the Federation as a guide to the employers' association were rejected. It is held that such resolutions would be taken as a sign of weakness.

The convention also put itself on record as against the establishment of a national arbitration board to be appointed by the secretary of labor and approved by the executive committee of the Federation.

DROWNED AT WEISER.

Workman on County Bridge Seized With Cramps, Sinks.

Weiser, Nov. 19.—The first accident on the new state bridge at this place occurred yesterday. Two men, Charles Walton and Clyde Baptiste, were painting the steel work of the bridge and were sitting on a swing hung by ropes, when, it is supposed the knot slipped and dropped them into the stream.

Boats were manned at once and went to the rescue; Walton told the men to save Baptiste, as he was a good swimmer and could take care of himself. Baptiste was rescued just as he was sinking for the last time. Walton was swimming for the shore, when he was seen to throw up his hands and with a scream he sunk and did not rise again.

The supposition is that he was seized with a cramp, as he was an expert swimmer. The river is now being dragged to recover the body, but the treacherous Snake seldom gives up its dead.

Walton came here from Salt Lake and his parents reside in Beverly, Mo. His wife is in this city and is an invalid, and it is feared the shock will prove fatal to her.

OREGON STUFF IS EXPENSIVE

EXTORTIONATE PRICES CHARGED IN THE EAST.

A Great Need of Oregon and of the East is closer relation of producers and consumers, for mutual benefit—Almost incredible differences in the prices of fruits and lumber between Oregon and Indiana and the Middle West.

"Jobbers and commission houses in the East have put up the prices on Oregon products so high that the poor people cannot possibly reach them and consequently the demand for Oregon stuff seems to be dull," said Elmer F. Cleaver, who has just arrived from Muncie, Ind., for a visit in this city.

Mr. Cleaver has been East nearly two years and has been a close observer of conditions, and especially conditions that affected western products in the Eastern markets.

"If the producer in Oregon and the consumer in the East could be brought together, and could make a direct exchange it would open up the greatest market in the world for Western products, but as it is, such profits are made on these products that the consumer cannot afford to use what he would, were prices within reason."

"When I left Muncie, Ind., a week ago, Oregon green prunes, of the 30-to-the-pound class, were selling there for 25 cents per dozen. The dried prunes of the best grade were selling at 20 cents per pound and the lowest retail price I saw quoted in that city was 7 1/2 cents per pound, while the same grade of prunes is selling in Salem today for 1 1/2 cents per pound and the freight rate on a carload lot is but one cent per pound."

"People in the East don't know how cheap they are at the orchard in Oregon, and naturally do not attempt to use them regularly, because of the extortionate prices charged by Eastern dealers for them."

"The same condition prevails in Oregon lumber. Poor men in the East who would build and improve houses, cannot do so, because of the high prices of Western lumber in their markets, while on the Pacific coast the lumber industry has gone to pieces because of the dull market."

"If the producer and consumer could get together and make an exchange, the market of the East would afford an inexhaustible demand for Western stuff which today is a drug on the Western market. People need the products of the West, but the prices are out of reason and the market is thus handicapped."

Mr. Cleaver was formerly in business in this city and has been East for nearly two years in the interest of mining properties in which he is largely concerned. His home is at Anderson, Ind., where Mrs. Cleaver is at present living. He has traveled extensively in the past two years and takes every opportunity to speak a good word for Oregon. His observations are worthy of the highest consideration by Oregon producers.

During the last fiscal year 16,009,361 pupils attended the public schools of the United States, at an average cost of $22.75 per head.

HORTON GIVES HIS VERSION

SAYS HE STABBED LEROY IN SELF-DEFENSE.

Been Drinking and Had Trouble With Two White Men, and Afterward Quarreled With LeRoy—Claims That at No Time Since the Affray Has He Been Off the Line of Railroad Between Pendleton and Walla Walla—Been Hiding Out.

There is a deputy sheriff of Union county, and a night watchman at La Grande, who are wondering who the frightened negro is that they mistook for Ira D. Horton, and who fled for his life when they attempted to capture him. Horton, the colored man charged with assaulting Edward LeRoy, his employer, a local tamale vender, was brought to this city last night from Walla Walla, where he was captured, and he declares he has not been near La Grande.

Horton says that after his attack on LeRoy early Tuesday morning he fled northward toward Adams. When day dawned he lay in hiding until nightfall, in a haystack. In the darkness he walked to Athens. That night he caught a freight train to Walla Walla, where he remained in hiding until captured by the police.

The prisoner admits he slashed LeRoy with a razor, but declares it was in self-defense. "I drank heavily the night of the trouble," said Horton. "I spent $4 of LeRoy's money. On my way home two white men bothered me and I jumped from the sidewalk and picked up a rock with which to protect myself. This I had in my pocket when I reached LeRoy's house. I told him that I had spent his money and he grumbled. Then I struck him with the rock. LeRoy grabbed me and threw me down upon the bed. With that I drew my razor and began to slash. I did not intend to kill him."

Horton says a white man gave him food while in Walla Walla, but he refuses to divulge his friend's name.
